

Commemorative Account of Tim Whitfield regarding his wife Margaret Annequin Date of Death 03/07/2015

These two pictures below show her affinity with Nature, and their beauty together.

Natural beauty - Year 1988

Natural beauty June 1988

She loved animals, and I often had to stop the car if she saw one in trouble.

With a dog in Canada in 1985

With 3 westies in Holland Park, Feb 2014

With Bambi – year 1962

With a donkey - This is probably my favourite Mags animal pic. Their shared stillness and resignation – year 1963

On a horse in Canada Year 1994

We met in 1978 when we were both studying for an English degree at North London Polytechnic.

Party time in Paris Year: 2005

*With toothache on our honeymoon in Amsterdam.
Year 1984*

Long as I can be with you.....
Visiting our friend [Mike Renshaw] in one of the flats in Tollesbury in 1992

---

FAMILY AND FRIENDS

With guinea pig and rabbit (and brother and dad) Year 1959

With our friend Paul in Amsterdam(1990)

[personal/sensitive - TW/13]

Hard at work at the Brompton- I love this picture. She looks so happy and capable! Plus she would have felt responsible for those people, and she's pleased because they're doing all right.

Travels – She loved travelling.

Margaret on the beach on Jura in 1989

In transit...

Mags climbs the Crac du Chevalier in Syria where the crusaders could ride their horses. 1998

SUDAN PHOTOS

There was an advert in the Guardian for English teachers in the Sudan, and all that was needed to apply was a degree, and the pay would be £15,000 for the year. After a weekend spent in the comfort of Farnham Castle to prepare us for the hardships of Sudan, the fact that the pay was in fact £1500 was a minor detail. (1982 – 1983)

We taught English in a school in Sudan for a year, and here's Mags still in bed, and not happy to have been woken up.

With sheep - at our favourite coffee shop on the banks of the Nile.

Preparing a meal

Doing the Laundry

[personal/sensitive - TW.21]

Guests ..

Gardening